Over Thirty Children Enroled In Grade One Orientation Program

As a result of our school board's legal school age, progressive-mindedness and timely policy regarding the lowering of entrance age requirements, we have over thirty children enrolled in our grade classes who otherwise would not be in our system today.

This all began a year ago when the board decided to put into immediate effect Section 138 of the New School Act (1970). This section of the new act lowered the school board to lower the entrance age. The legal entrance age is six years—as of September 1, of the particular school year.

Some of the parents were confused by the shift in government policy resulting from the change of school act. According to the old school act, students were of legal school age after their sixth birthday fall on or before December 31 of a given school year. The new school act considers the student must be of school age if his sixth birthday falls before September 1 of a given school year.

Our school board adopted the policy whereby a youngster whose sixth birthday falls after September 1 and prior to February 28 would be considered as a school pupil providing these three conditions were satisfied.

- 1 that we have the physical facilities,
- 2 that we have the instructional personnel, and
- 3 that the youngster in question satisfies the orientation program requirements.

The orientation program this year consists of three weeks—September 6 through September 25. We chose September as opposed to May or June of previous school year for several reasons—the main being that the youngsters would be at least two months older. This can and does make quite a noticeable difference when we consider maturity and readiness. We are extending the orientation period for eight students beyond the 25th.

The orientation program was conducted by our grade one teacher all of whom have an excellent record both in experience and ability as teachers of this age group. They observed these pupils along with the grade one youngsters of Early in the morning the school children are being loaded on the school bus here. Also there are employees who stay at the Stop-In hotel, are turned onto highway 3. At this time there are usually large trailer transports double parked, partially blocking the access road to the Esso garage causing a congestion in this area.

It is such situations as these, when what is necessary and what is available do not meet, that the Preventive Social Services Thrift Shops in Coleman and Bellevue were designed to meet. The thrift shops offer mainly used clothing for sale at economical prices.

All clothing is donated and besides donations from the Pass, we have also had donations from Pincher Creek, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat. Besides clothing, both stores sell a small quantity of such things as books, records, jewelry, and knick-knacks.

The proceeds from the sale of these items go into paying wages, rent, and utilities for the stores. Whenever extra income occurs, goes back into the Preventive Social Services budget, to go towards reducing the cost of the program to the participating municipalities.

The Coleman thrift shop is open from 1:30 p.m. — 5:30 p.m. Tuesday to Saturday. Mrs. A. Pannan and Mrs. P. Sullivan work at the Coleman Shop. They sort and price all articles coming into the store making adjustments according to the condition of the article.

The Bellevue Thrift Shop is operated by Mrs. H. Norvick. She also is responsible for receiving the donated articles, arranging them for display, and pricing them for sale. The Bellevue and Coleman Thrift Shops are operated independently of each other and the prices are set by the ladies operating them.

COAL ROYALTIES REVIEW WILL NOT BE FORGOTTEN

EDMONTON — A planned review of Alberta coal royalties may be delayed but will not be forgotten. Premier Peter Lougheed said here.

The premier told an informal news conference conditions in the province's coal industry are "so tenuous" it might be necessary to postpone the review that the government has admitted is essential.

The loss of employment in collieries at Coleman and Camrose must be considered, he said, and the prospect of closer relationships with Japan might be a factor.

However, "I still feel the royalty structure is too low," he said, promising that the province's policy statement on petroleum royalties will be dealt with during a fall legislative session. The province now collects 10 cents on each ton produced.

The premier expressed disappointment at the lack of public response to a legislative committee studying foreign ownership of land.

"I hope to talk with the committee chairman," said Premier Lougheed, "but if we don't get the amount of response we would like to get, the government still must provide the opportunity to react."

A lovely lunch was served by the hostesses, the bride-to-be was then presented with many lovely and useful gifts. She received a set of cast iron pots, canister set and bread box to match, vacuum cleaner, set of dishes.

Debbie then thanked her many hostesses for making her shower such a memorable occasion. She also thanked all who attended, brought gifts and to those who donated, sent gifts but could not attend.

Debbie was married to Mr. Earl Belcher on October 7 in Holy Spirit Catholic Church, Coleman.

The bride table was then presented with many lovely gifts. The large gift was an ironing board and steam iron, canister set, pots, blankets and many other useful gifts.

The guest of honor then thanked her hostesses for making her shower such a success, and thanked all who attended, sent gifts, and donated but could not attend.

Marianne became the bride of Mr. John Kapka October 7.

A wine and cheese party was held on Friday, September 29 at the home of Mrs. Irene Ondrus to honor Miss Marianne Krysa.

Several parlour games were enjoyed by the ladies who attended. The guest of honor was then presented with many lovely gifts.

Preventive Social Services

By CHARLES T. GALE

p.m. — 5:00 p.m. Tuesday to Saturday.

With the sample of winter weather we have been experiencing lately, the thoughts of many households are directed towards winter preparations and one of the things that has to be done is to check the family's winter clothing to see what shape it is in, what can be repaired, and what has to be replaced.

To many, the buying of winter clothes for the family involves a considerable outlay of money. It's a matter of adding another payment to the monthly list, and for some others, it's just a hard fact that there is little or no extra money for winter clothes.

It is such situations as these, when what is necessary and what is available do not meet, that the Preventive Social Services Thrift Shops in Coleman and Bellevue were designed to meet. The thrift shops offer mainly used clothing for sale at economical prices.

All clothing is donated and besides donations from the Pass, we have also had donations from Pincher Creek, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat. Besides clothing, both stores sell a small quantity of such things as books, records, jewelry, and knick-knacks.

This should be a very "lucky" period for all Aries individuals. If your birthday happens to fall between April 21 and April 20th you will be specially favoured by the stars!

TAURUS—April 21 to May 20

A very short period of "delays" in matters dealing with all aspects of communication is affecting your sign at the present time. However this will "clear itself" quickly if handled properly.

GEMINI—May 21 to June 20

There may be some antagonism evident between yourself and others for the next week or so. Don't let this deter you from your cherished ideals, but try to stay out of arguments!

CANCER—June 21 to July 21

The planets are lining up most favourably for persons born in the sign of Cancer. News from afar may bring some quite unexpected gain during the coming week. Stick close to business.

LEO—July 22 to August 21

You may lay plans right now for some great achievements in the future. Luck and carefully laid plans could bring you much material gain for years to come. In all events, be sensible!

VIRGO—August 22 to Sept. 21

The solar chart for Virgo indicates a strong possibility of a "move" of some description, either from one place to another, or some important decision in your private life. Your chart is GOOD!

LIBRA—Sept. 22 to Oct. 22

Very favourable aspects are now in your sign. A good time to make new starts that certainly should turn out well.

SCORPIO—Oct. 23 to Nov. 21

Everything is "calming down" in the general chart for Scorpio at the present. Many problems that may have bothered you in the past can be solved, and you will have the stars giving you much aid.

Add reserved cup of stock, 1 table-spoon vinegar and salt to taste. Cook till smooth. Pour over brown brisket. Slice and serve.

Makes 4 servings. Only economical if you have your own brisket!

Blend flour, the 1/8 tsp. dry mustard and the 1/8 tsp. marjoram with the pan juices. Stir in water. Cook and stir until mixture is thickened and bubbly.

THE MAN FOR THE JOB

JOE CLARK is the Progressive Conservative candidate in Rocky Mountain federal riding.

People who have met all the candidates say he is the right man for the riding . . . the only candidate whose entire career, in politics, government, and journalism, has been training for the job he is now seeking.

Joe Clark was born in High River in 1939. He is as young as the present Liberal Member of Parliament. He went to the University of Alberta, to study and later teach political science and Canadian government. Since then he has been a journalist and broadcaster, writing about Western Canada for the daily newspapers and the CBC.

He has taken an active part in federal and provincial politics since the first DUFFY BAKER election, in 1957. Joe was himself a candidate in the 1967 provincial election, and came remarkably close to defeating the former Speaker of the Provincial Legislature, ARTHUR DIXON in Calgary South.

JOE has served as Director of Provincial Organization for PETER LOUGH-HEED, and Special Assistant to the Honourable DAVIE FULTON. From 1967 to 1970, Joe Clark was Executive Assistant to the Honourable ROBERT STANFIELD. He has held several executive positions in the federal and provincial party, and was principal organizer of national policy conferences on Canadian goals, and national priorities. Joe was given all these jobs because he could get things done. His record in both national and provincial party organizations is that of a doer.

He is also known as a thinker . . . a man who is urging new policies for the 1970's . . . for the survival of small towns and rural communities, for the quality of life in Western Canada, and for the development of new markets around the Pacific.

During this apprenticeship, Joe Clark has made it his business to learn about Western Alberta and its needs, to learn how to get things done in Ottawa, and to ask questions.

I am dropping these few lines for the purpose of obtaining some information about the Town of Coleman.

You see, I was born in Coleman 2-3-18. My parents ran the general store in West Coleman just around the bluff, that was back in the twenties.

I would appreciate it very much if you can send me some information concerning the flood which happened about 1923, in picture form.

It has been quite a number of years since I left Coleman, but the memories of Coleman still linger in my mind.
I hope I'm not putting you through too much bother.

I am making plans to pay a visit back west, God willing and everything thing going well.

Yours truly,

EDGAR BENSON'S JOB

National transportation policy can make or break Western Canada. It sets the costs for moving goods between the West and the rest of Canada, and many Westerners believe these costs are higher than they should be.

Transportation policy is set by the Canadian Transport Commission. This summer, when a new Commission Chairman was to be chosen, Alberta's Premier Peter Lougheed requested that a Western Canadian be appointed. Many people in the West agreed. Instead, Mr. Trudeau chose Edgar Benson, whose most obvious qualification is that he is a Trudeau Liberal in need of a job.

This was a political payoff, and it may severely harm Western Canada. It teaches us two lessons . . .

First lesson: How much the West relies on good decision-making in Ottawa.

Second lesson: How little the Trudeau Liberals care about the real interests of Western Canada.

A progressive Conservative government will . . .

- Fire Edgar Benson, and appoint a Chairman sympathetic to Western Canada.
- Appoint a National Transportation Coordinator to speed up grain shipments.
- Review all national transportation policy.

HERE IN ROCKY MOUNTAIN we have a bonus. Our vote can do two things . . . we can help change the government, and we can elect JOE CLARK.

Joe Clark will be more than just a good constituency M.P. He is a man with the ability to get things done in Ottawa . . . to be an articulate spokesman for the people he represents.

The Conservative Party would not appoint a Benson to a vital job because men like Joe Clark would not stand for it. Joe Clark is a man who counts in the party that cares about Western Canada.

THE BIG TRAIN ROBBERY

(By HERBERT K. LEGG)

Some dates and places can never be forgotten. August 2nd, 1920 will always be remembered by some and so will a place in the Rocky Mountains of Alberta, where perhaps the most spectacular hold-up on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and the scene of a man hunt which rivals any in the Dominion by police officers, took place.

With a death toll that reached a total of five before the case was finally concluded, including those of Corporal Ernest Usher of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Constable F. W. E. Bailey of the Alberta Provincial Police, who were shot and killed by the desperado.

Previous to this event, the famous train robbery case, which occurred in August 1904, on the main line of the CPR, near Kamloops, B.C., in which Bill Miner and his pals Dunn and Colquhoun and been brought to time by the Royal North West Mounted Police, was the best known in Canada.

In the Crownest case, the responsibility of capturing the criminals and bringing them to justice, rested on the shoulders of the Alberta Police, a force comparatively young at that time. In the nature of their work, much that used to be that of the old RCMP had been delegated to them, and in this and many other instances since, they have shown that the mantle has fallen on worthy shoulders. However in this case the RCMP rendered valuable assistance.

The hold-up of CPR train No. 83, running from Lethbridge to Cranbrook was the work of three foreigners, namely, Tom Bassoff, George Arkoff and Alex. Auloff, all three Russian Cossacks.

The name Cossack is derived from the Turkish word, kakak, meaning robber. These people who inhabit the southern and eastern portions of Russia, have long borne a reputation for cruelty, reckless daring and skill in the use of arms. In this story is one of the most cold-blooded deeds in the criminal annals.

In the middle of the afternoon of August 2nd, 1920, just as passenger train No. 83 was rounding Crownest Lake at the foot of Crownest Mountain, near Sentinel, Alberta, a very lonely spot in the big woods, situated in the extreme southwestern corner of the province, six miles east of the British Columbia boundary line and 27 miles north of the Montana State line.

The one hundred or more passengers, some on business and others on pleasure bent, were suddenly startled by what was demanded of the conductor in charge of the train, and a short time later of what was demanded of many more on board.

No one until then had taken any particular notice of the three men who had boarded the train at Lethbridge, Alberta, especially enroute to Fernie, B.C., as bona fide passengers. Not even the conductor had paid them any particular attention, as men of the roughest type are frequently seen riding through the Crownest Pass.

Suddenly one of their number, later ascertained to be Alex. Auloff, arose with a Luger automatic in his hand, and ordered Tom Jones, one of the oldest and best known conductors in southern Alberta, to surrender.

Conductor Jones took the man seriously, told him to put up his gun, but realizing from his conduct that he was intent upon robbery. He therefore reached for the air signal and succeeded in pulling it once, when the armed man fired a shot, the bullet going over the head of the conductor and passengers and lodging in the woodwork at the top end of the coach.

The sharp crack of the explosive sounded clear above the roar of the train, and the startled passengers, awakened from the drowsiness induced by the hot August afternoon, stared in the direction of the shot. The two other bandits, Bassoff and Arkoff then got up with their terrorizing automatics clearly visible.

Hearing the shot, J. H. Staples, baggage man, emerged from his car, just in time to be herded with the conductor and brakeman, and the smoking car passengers into the first class car. Bassoff then climbed to the top of the coach and stood guard with drawn gun, apparently with a view of preventing any person from leaving or entering the coach, while his two comrades were busy searching the occupants for money and valuables.

Only men were searched and it was apparent the bandits were looking for someone, who they thought might have a large sum of money on his person. A number of men succeeded in transferring their reserve bank rolls to the custody of their wives, and two male passengers were searched even through to their under garments.

The composure with which the passengers submitted themselves to being searched and particularly the absence of hysterical outbursts from females, undoubtedly saved some or many from injury.

Just as the bandits had finished their task, the train slid to a gradual stop at Sentinel, a "flag stop," which did not boast of a station. Here the bandits after warning their victims not to follow, jumped off the train and escaped into the adjacent bush.

When the conductor and passengers had recovered from the biggest thrill they had ever experienced, the train had come to a full stop at Sentinel, where engineer Alexander, the driver of the locomotive, learned for the first time of the holdup. The train was held until the police and CPR officials were communicated with.

In the meantime the passengers were checking up on their losses and it was estimated the bandits had made away with approximately $600 and several watches, including the gold cased railroad time-piece.

of conductor Jones, inadvertently which resulted in the capture of Alex Auloff, three years later.

A number of mounted and provincial police were soon on the scene, but before very much could be done, darkness had set in. During the night the main highway was patrolled and the wire kept humming, and in the morning further policemen and armed citizens from towns scattered throughout the pass, joined in the search.

It was no easy task, and so all of the gullies and ravines, that would afford hiding places for a regiment. For four days the posses searched the countryside in the vicinity of the crime, without coming across the slightest trace of the bandits. The robbers had not worn masks, and the police had a good description of them, yet they had apparently entirely disappeared.

Had they broken through the cordon, or had they found some secure hiding place in that wild mountainous district, or could they have made their way across the border into Montana, in spite of the vigilance of the searchers.

These were the questions that were being asked, which were to be answered a few days later, on August 7th.

Constable James Frewin, in charge of Bellevue detachment of the Alberta Provincial Police, a small mining town, about 12 miles east of where the holdup took place, was sitting in the detachment office at one o'clock on the afternoon of August 7th, discussing the possible whereabouts of the bandits with Corporal Ernest Usher who had come from Macleod to assist in the search, and Constable F. W. E. Bailey, who had just that day arrived from Lethbridge.

Suddenly the telephone rang and Corporal Usher answered stating it was a message from Blairmore, to the effect that two men, answering the description of the wanted men, had been seen walking the railroad track towards Bellevue.

As a result the three police officers immediately left the detachment and proceeded down the main street towards the railroad. On the way they met Joseph Robertson, local justice of the peace, who informed them that two strange men had just entered the Bellevue, a Chinese restaurant situated on the west side of the main street.

BOOKS

The following two books may be obtained from the Coleman community library.

JAKE—by Alfred Slot—A story for boys—

The story is of a baseball team, the Printalls, who were last years champions. Just before the beginning of the season their coach quit. Jake, an 11 year old boy, takes over the team because he is the strongest—not the best but the strongest.

However, the board of commissioners said they need a "real" coach. The boys think of Jake's uncle Henry. Can they think of some way to get Henry as their coach? Will they be able to stay in the league? You will find out when you read Jake, a good true to life story for boys.

INDIAN LEGENDS OF SANDY LAKE CREE — by James R. Stevens:

Emphasis on Canadian Indian Lore continues with this publication by James Stevens, a native of Stratford, Ontario.

Sandy Lake Cree Indian Reserve is located 600 miles North of Thunder Bay, Ontario. The book, about Cree legends, easily lays aside the theory that Canada has little native lore.

The context of the legends links the Cree to the land from which they come. Continuous references to the forest creatures reveal the Cree's attachment to and understanding in the fellow creatures of the world. Where the white man seeks to conquer his environment, the Cree seeks it to be a functionary part of his life.

The book also contains are work by Carl Ray, a native of Sandy Lake Reserve.

no hang-ups...

with an electric dryer & washer

Wet wash is a hang-up. In more ways than one. It's no fun to pin and unpin thousands of clothespins a year. It's no fun to lug hundreds of pounds of wet wash to and from the clothesline.

Break free of your hang-ups. Discover the wonderful convenience of an electric dryer and washer. Gentle electric heat is perfect for permanent-press garments as well as your other clothes.

See the new electric dryers and washers at your appliance dealer now... and get rid of your hang-ups.
